Brandon Horman has been promoted to become the new boys basketball coach at Cedar Rapids Jefferson, the school announced Monday afternoon.

Horman replaces Stu Ordman, who resigned after the season to become the new head coach at Iowa City Regina.

Horman has spent the last six years with the Jefferson basketball program and served as the co-head coach this past season.

"Brandon will work hard to instill the tradition of J-Hawk basketball in student-athletes and bring about changes that they can be proud of and excited for," said Jefferson activities director Chris Deam.
