Jade Rogers, a former all-state basketball player at Kennedy, will serve as an assistant coach with the Coe women's basketball team this season.

Rogers, 23, was a four-time all-state selection at Kennedy.

Rogers attended the University of Iowa for four years, played basketball for the Hawkeyes and got her degree from Iowa. She moved to St. Louis last August to coach at Maryville University, but switched from being a coach to a player after she learned she still had a year of eligibility.
